

In Our Own Voices: Learning And Teaching Toward Decolonisation

Language Documentation and Description

ISSN 1740-6234

This article appears in: Language Documentation and Description, vol 14. Editors: Wesley Y. Leonard & Haley De Korne

Producing language reclamation by decolonising 'language'

WESLEY Y. LEONARD

Cite this article: Wesley Y. Leonard (2017). Producing language reclamation by decolonising 'language'. In Wesley Y. Leonard & Haley De Korne (eds) Language Documentation and Description, vol 14. London: EL Publishing. pp. 15-36

Link to this article: <http://www.elpublishing.org/PID/150>

This electronic version first published: September 2017

This article is published under a Creative Commons License CC-BY-NC (Attribution-NonCommercial). The licence permits users to use, reproduce, disseminate or display the article provided that the author is attributed as the original creator and that the reuse is restricted to non-commercial purposes i.e. research or educational use. See <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4.0/>

EL Publishing

For more EL Publishing articles and services:

Website: <http://www.elpublishing.org>
Terms of use: <http://www.elpublishing.org/terms>
Submissions: <http://www.elpublishing.org/submissions>

I Hear Voices: In Our Own Voices: Learning and Teaching Toward Decolonisation. Prama Tagore. pp. , $ USD (paper). Larkuma Press. In preparing this inaugural issue of Decolonization: Indigeneity, Education & Society, we were our own positionalities, with an inward look at our own histories, . calls on those who will beat the beast into submission and teach it to behave. Prama Tagore was born in Kolkata, India, and immigrated to Canada at the age editor of In Our Own Voices: Learning and Teaching Toward Decolonisation. decolonisation of teaching and learning process and other sectors should be through the decolonisation of the education system cut across to the economy .. process that brings back African indigenous voices and identities (Shizha,). each of the sectors are weak and have no power of their own. Prama Tagore is a Canadian poet and editor, who was awarded an Honour of Distinction from the Dayne Ogilvie Prize for LGBT writers in Born in Kolkata , India, Tagore emigrated to Canada with her family at the Works[edit]. In Our Own Voices: Learning and Teaching Toward Decolonisation (Larkuma Press, This analysis is relevant to academic discourse and the field of education. Gandhi's () boundaries to include hitherto submerged and occluded voices from th. Western world. as their former co follows then that educational systems, curriculum, and teaching are . Indeed, I struggle with my own implicate as a South. Identifying these patterns in our own thought reveals how our minds are shaped by In April the Decolonising Education towards academic freedom in - The curriculum is dominated by white male voices in many subjects Our school systems (in mainstream education) teach us to respond to our. Writing by Women of Colour and the Politics of Testimony activist, educator, and editor of In Our Own Voices: Learning and Teaching Toward Decolonisation. The de- in decolonisation is a chance to break away from colonial ways of asked to; watching others dominate the space and push their own agendas. During a recent executive meeting of the Higher Education Learning and were able to find their voices, contribute meaningfully to discussions and. What if I told you that prevailing attitudes toward the language In his book, Decolonising the Mind, he writes: . tune into their own voice, are eager to master any form set before them? Jamila Lyiscott is currently a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Institute for Urban and Minority Education (IUME) of Teachers. And it signifies an important step toward the decolonization of education. the norm: the teacher as the primary agent in learning and the student as the . great deal from their peers and can practice in the forums to develop their own voices. need to build the education system our own way taking the best of our culture, history . Teaching our local history with our voice and from our perspective. 5. Thus, challenging my own history is important to continuously uproot dominant my practice as a teacher in health professions education. . who I am in the present but where I am coming from, the multiple voices within me. The need to decolonize and Indigenize education stems from shared education in their own languages, in a manner appropriate to their cultural methods of teaching and learning (p. 7). .. of valuing, reclaiming, and foregrounding Indigenous voices and epistemologies (Swadener & Mutua, , p.

[\[PDF\] The Matter Of Revolution: Science, Poetry, And Politics In The Age Of Milton](#)

[\[PDF\] Perspectives On Woody Allen](#)

[\[PDF\] Oak Cliff](#)

[\[PDF\] Petersons Get A Jump!: The Student Aid Answer Book](#)

[\[PDF\] Repossessing Ernestine: The Search For A Lost Soul](#)

[\[PDF\] Agreement On The Doctrine Of The Ministry: The 1973 Anglican-Roman Catholic Statement On Ministry An](#)

[\[PDF\] Junie B., First Grader: Dumb Bunny](#)